Mayor Leo P. Carlin
City Hall
Newark, New Jersey

Dear Mayor:

As long as we are increasing the salary range of the assistant director's job, I am wondering if you feel it is appropriate now to give me a boost too?

I am now at my maximum of $9,000 and I'd really appreciate having a new range for this position. It is now eight years old and a bit out moded by standards of other cities.

May I have your OK to ask Sam to amend the ordinance being considered now. I am recommending a new range for the job of Director of the Mayor's Commission on Group Relations to be $8,500 to $11,000 per year with annual increments of $500 per year.

This scale will put you in a better bargaining position, if I should be leaving. If I don't leave, I think it is a just salary compared to similar positions throughout the country.

I certainly hope you will give this request your sincere consideration.

Cordially yours,

Dan

P.S. Pawley, Pettigrew, Bill Brach and I are getting together with Commissioner Lawrence Orton of New York City next week to shed some light on the Middle Income Housing question.
